Burra Creek Campground South Australia - August 11th 2006 until August 13th 2006.

Large campground located 23kms out from Burra on the Robertstown to Burra road.

Fri 11th - Sun 13th Aug 2006: Sally wasn't due back at work until Tuesday and as I had finished for the week at 12.00 o'clock, it was a hasty pack up to get ready and we were on the road by 1.48pm. We were not ready to go like we would normally be due to one of the dogs getting the all clear from the vet that morning allowing us to go away fro the weekend. It was an easy drive from home to Robertstown and then on to Burra Creek campground where we arrived as 2.45pm.

We were among only a few at the campground when we arrived on the Friday, but as the weekend progressed, we estimated approximately a mix of up to twelve caravans and camper trailers scattered throughout the campground. We didn't venture along the creek back towards the main bitumen so there could have been more campers that way.

Our entire weekend was a mix of walking for me while Sally stopped close near the caravan as Ruby wasn't allowed to walk very far until after her operation this coming Friday and relaxing close to our camp area. Saturday was a perfect day with no wind and the sun pushing the temperature to what felt like just above twenty degrees. Sunday was a warm day with the wind starting to pick up with the change starting to come through. It was nice to see my little sister Debbie and her husband Paul share a bit of breakfast with us on Sunday before they had to head for home. After a tidy up and a quick shower to rid ourselves of some of the campfire smoke, we left for home at 12.30pm with the wind blowing on our back. After a safe trip home, the caravan was packed away until our next trip which at this stage will be Canberra during late September.
