

Burra Creek Campground - July 22nd 2005 until July 25th 2005

Large campground located 23kms out from Burra on the Robertstown to Burra road.

FRI 22nd JULY 2005: With Sally not working due to school holidays and as I was on night shift finishing work at 6.00am, we were soon on our way by 6.45am heading for our destination for the weekend of Burra Creek Campground.

The road leading from the main Robertstown to Burra Road.

We had arranged to meet Sue & Malcolm at the campground early afternoon before Bruce & Maree were to arrive mid to late afternoon. After an easy run, we were soon set up at our camping location by 9am. I jumped into bed for a few hours sleep while Sally kept herself busy checking out what was around the area. Sue & Malcolm arrived not long after lunch and Bruce & Maree by about 4.00pm. We had a perfect night on Friday night to sit around the fire without getting cold from the damp night air

The photo to the left shows the Caravans all set up and the one to the right illustrates what the weekend was all about.

SAT 23rd JULY 2005: After a good breakfast of sausages, eggs, mushrooms and bacon cooked on the wood bbq, it was off for a walk to see if we could find some fallen timber for the fire. Because of the popularity of the campground, wood was hard to find so it was just as well that we all brought some with us. Since all of the rain a few weeks earlier, the country side was now looking very nice with the green grass shining in the sunshine.

Blue skies, green grass and little wind made it ideal for camping over the weekend.

By late morning, some friends of Sue and Malcolm had arrived and after lunch we all ventured off on a walk which took us into the hills along the Burra Creek. The last time that we were here, we only went on the start of this walk not knowing that it went further into the hills and finally coming to a water pond. The walk was only short and well worth it.

Small waterfall and water pond at the end of the Burra Creek walking trail.

Water at the end of the Burra creek walking trail.

SUN 24th JULY 2005: After another breakfast cooked on the bbq, we all enjoyed a lazy day before Bruce and Maree were due to pack up and leave for Adelaide ending their weekend with us. Sue and Malcolm like us, were not heading home until Monday morning so we had one more night to enjoy before our weekend came to an end.

Our last night around the campfire with a bottle of red for Malcolm's Birthday.