Port Broughton - 5th April 2007 until 9th April 2007.

Port Broughton is located 153kms north from home on the eastern side of Spencer Gulf.

Thurs 5th April 2007: As both Sally and I were not working on the Thursday, we were able to leave home for Port Broughton as soon as the final grocery shopping was completed. This had us arriving at Port Broughton at approximately 11.00am after an easy two hour run. There was a reasonable amount of traffic on the roads already with the early starts like ourselves trying to avoid the known traffic hassles associated with the Easter weekend. It was early afternoon when Malcolm and Sue arrived with Bruce and Maree arriving in the later part of the day.

Fri 6th April until Sun 8th April 2007: Dion and Samantha arrived Friday with Kylie not far behind them, all for the weekend while Troy and Renae arrived Saturday for the remainder of the weekend with a boat which was used to catch some blue swimmer crabs in the Port Broughton channel. With visitors on the Saturday and the Sunday, we were kept busy for the weekend which was good.

Since we were at the caravan park last Easter, there has been a new camp kitchen built near the swimming pool and a caravan toilet dump point near the fish cleaning facilities. The new camp kitchen looks great and should be of great benefit to park patrons. The weather for our weekend was perfect with some light wind at times and plenty of sunshine.

Mon 9th April 2007: With some cloud cover and the strongest wind for the weekend, the entire caravan park was up and packing as we all got ready for our respective trips home. After an early feed of fish and chips from the local cafe, we all left the park by soon after midday. We came home via a detour through Snowtown to avoid the dreaded traffic line up as you entered the Port Augusta road from the Peninsular road.
